45th ANNUAL SHOW WILL BE BIGGER AND BETTER THAN EVER BEFORE

Raymond's 45 annual Stampede arrives next Tuesday. This is the first year in its entire history that the Stampede has operated without its foremost exponent, Ray Knight, the "father of the Stampede", who made Raymond famous as "the home of the Stampede". For 44 years the town and district have looked forward to the Raymond Stampede and Race Meet as the big event of the year and this year will be no exception. An extra $1000. has been added to the prize list bringing the total to over $3000. in prizes and entrance fees.

Top cowboys from all over the continent will arrive to participate in the finest show ever to be staged in Raymond.

Starting from scratch in 1903 with nothing but ambition and long sightedness, the show has become outstanding in the rodeo world and many records have been made and broken right here in our own arena.

A lot of time and effort has again been put into this year's show and all committee chairmen report that their departments are in readiness for the coming stampede.

The finest performers, and rodeo men, the toughest stock, the fastest calves, combined with top manager and arena director will give thrills and action never seen before.

The town of Raymond, its people, and the Stampede committee bid you welcome to the Raymond Stampede and Race Meet and sincerely hope you enjoy the show. You will be an enthusiastic Rodeo Fan after seeing this show.

(Some highlights of Ray Knight and Stampedes will be found in the History of Raymond, inside page.)

FOURTH QUORUM YIELDS 27 MEN TO THE ACRE

Supporting a Quorum Welfare Project the 4th Quorum of Elders of the Raymond Second Ward turned out 27 strong on Tuesday night to thin the acre of beets that the quorum is raising as a project in the welfare program.

In an interview with Howard Melchin he told the Recorder he was very well pleased with the response of the men. (His appeal for help was so forceful that he even had the Editor out with a hoe.) Not only were the beets complete about the area field that adjoined was hoed. A few more muscles and a lot of fun was had by all.

To keep the boys going along, 2 cases of pop and hot dogs galore were prepared and served by Mrs. Irene Bowden, Mrs. Harold Garner and daughter Eva.

Rayo Woolf complained this morning that he now creaks and groans as bad as the old Ford he drives.

Following is a list of the men that turned out to support the project:

Henry Jensen, Art Jensen, Leonard Watson, Allen Watson, Cecil Finch, Howard Melchin, Jim Weaver, Paul Fairbanks, Bill Fairbanks, Asa Seville, Andrew Heggie, Bob Heggie, Ken Knight, Dave Court, Doug Paxman, Lem Adams, Joe Thompson, George Erickson, Clarence Bowden, Jack Evans, Murray Holt, Gill Evans, Kay Cook, Rayo Woolf, Harold Garner, Rex Meeks, Lawrence Duncombe.

The presidency of the Quorum express their appreciation to those who so happily responded to the call.

Melvin T. King, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Allen is leaving Saturday for a vacation in Vancouver.

"Tall Fish Stories" time has arrived. From now on you can probably hear lots about the big ones that got away. It wasn't the fish that got away on a recent trip, it was the horses.

HISTORY OF RAYMOND

By ELIZABETH KING

A FRIEND OF THE COWBOYS

On the 7th day of the 2nd month
The arrow of death was aimed
At a pioneer and a friend of ours
Which this year '47 has claimed.

This man we all knew and loved so well

"Oscar Ray Knight" was his name.
A pioneer of the days gone by
Also known for his calf roping fame.

Ray was also known to have started
All the rodeos in the west.
Managing and performing as contestant

And was known as one of the best.

He was one of the greatest of ranchers

One of the first of the few
And we'll remember him as a great symbol

A pioneer and a friend we all knew

He was the "Pride" and the "Friend" of the cowboys.

Always lending a helping hand.
Fighting off hardships and sorrows
Which came in building this land.

But now this pioneer has left us
In this atomic age that's here.

But we'll always cherish the memories

Which were always so helpful and
dear.

Now friends this story is ending
And those memories shall always remain

Of a pioneer "Friend of the Cowboys"

"Ray Knight" of the rodeo game.
Composed by JOHN NAVRATIL

As the 1947 Raymond Stampede draws near our thoughts turn to the "Father of the Stampede", the late Oscar Raymond Knight and the first Stampede ever held in Canada. That was in 1903, just 44 years ago, July 1st, Tuesday next.

A park for the town had been surveyed and named "Victoria", but there was still much to be done. A Mr. Braddock surveyed the tract and in order to get it ready for the big event the men then working on the new sugar factory quit work long enough to get the track and arena in shape. This same spot has yearly staged some of the greatest rodeos
on the continent.

As the years go by the interest of the public in these shows does not seem to be waning as it is estimated that the attendance last year, 1946 was over 7,500, the highest crowd
yet to be seen in the Raymond rodeo land. The general public have little idea of the planning, the work, the time and money required by the committee in putting over these Stampedes for the pleasure of the people of Raymond and district.

Raymond has the honor of being the original home of the stampede
with Ray Knight as its first manager.
It was greatly through his efforts that the Raymond Stampede has developed into one of the best shows in America. It is understood that Raymond has priority in choosing desirable dates for the event each year.

Ray Knight has produced many fine shows and was enthusiastic over rodeos to the last. The Stampede was Ray's choicest and most enjoyable hobby. It is said that he spent thousands of dollars out of his own pockets to make the show
a good one. Even after his serious illness he continued to come and enjoy the work of the cowboys. Just last year a special spot was reserved for his car where he could see the much loved events of the day. In the afternoon at a given signal, words sounding something like these rang out through the air and reached the ears of over 7000 people: "We here assembled today are greatly honored by having with us the "father of the Stampede", Ray Knight, who is known all over the continent as the veteran show man in rodeo. Let us welcome him here today by giving him a great big hand".

And so Ray Knight's rodeo days are ended but not forgotten. Let us pause in our busy activities at this time to pay homage to the memory of the man who did so much for the development of the stampede in the west.

THIS AND THAT
about Stampede
A personal interview with Ray Knight (Taken from the AD-NEWS 1938. R.D. Nilsson, Editor.)

We asked Ray Knight to tell us a few of the highlights in his Stampede career, but he scoffed and replied that every stampede has its highlights.

"There are never two stampedes that are just alike. Something happens in every show to make you remember it. That's why you never tire of them—why they are always exciting."

In the last 25 years he has directed far too many shows to ever remember the exact number. Besides the annual Raymond event, Ray Knight has put on stampedes in Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Medicine
Hat, Lethbridge, Coeur d'Alene,
Idaho and many other places.

Notable among his successes were,
the Macleod Jubilee (for the mounted police) in 1924, the Shelby Stampede in 1923 (at the time of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight) and the Saskatoon show in 1919 for the Prince of Wales.

As Ray recalls, he believes that he has attended every Calgary Stampede since they started.

When asked what he thought the most important requisites of a good show he said: "Good stock and fast operation of shows, without any delay."

Anyone who has attended a Ray Knight show knows the accuracy of this statement. Ray's stampede stock, especially broncs, are famous all over Canada. And certainly there is no time wasted at his shows. It's a thrill a minute.

But most important Ray says is the audience itself. "The cowboys or the manager doesn't put on the stampede," he says, "it's the people in the grandstands who put on the show."

Stampedes, he thinks are on the decline, or will be soon. He doesn't think they can last very long—except in such places as Calgary, Cheyenne, Arizona, Texas etc. The reason he explains, is because the stock is getting increasingly difficult to procure. Ranges are depleted of wild horses, and it's almost impossible to find a steer with horns.

People are as interested in stamp-edes as ever, Knight thinks, and always will be—particularly now that the stampede is the last reminder of the old frontier days.

As far as the show is concerned,
the rodeo is really a faster, better show than it ever was in 1903. Audiences, Ray finds are just as enthusiastic as they ever were. But, like all sports, to really enjoy stampedes you have to know something about them. Ray recalls that when he was invited to judge the World Series Rodeo, in Madison Square Gardens,
New York, in 1928, he could not convince many of the spectators that the horses were not trained to buck.

THE COWBOY—now and then.
(The AD-NEWS, 1938)

Old-timers like to compare the
"Cowboy" now and in 1903.

When they do so they are liable to discover the real cowboy no longer exists, that is the old "Cowhand"
as he was at the turn of the century.
Cowboys today have become showmen, and excellent ones too.

In the old days, cowboys learned their art for practical purposes on the range. It was a necessity. Today they have learned that art for exhib-itional purposes. The best cowboys today are professional contestants,

touring from one stampede to another,
all season. Hence, they are more proficient in their individual sports than they used to be. The bronc riders are better and the calf ropers faster than they used to be.

A FEW NOTES ABOUT RAY and roping

(AD-NEWS, 1938)
Not only did Ray Knight manage the first Stampede, but he also introduced calf roping to North America.

The first calf that was ever roped for exhibition was roped and tied by Ray Knight at Lethbridge in 1917, in less seconds than it takes to tell.

about it. From there the idea spread to Calgary and the first calves roped was at the show of 1919. From Calgary, the greatest Stampede meeca in the World, calf roping spread all over North America.

It was only fitting that the man who introduced the sport should be its best exponent. Ray Knight won the first place in the calf roping in Lethbridge in 1917, 1918 and in Calgary in 1919.

Later, when the contest was in full swing that same veteran sportsman was to bring fresh laurels home to Raymond, when he won the Canadian calf roping championship on two different occasions and was awarded the coveted Tom Campbell Silver Challenge Trophy.

The Tourist Industry

WITH THE LIFTING OF wartime restrictions on the various forms of travel, tourist traffic has again become a source of considerable revenue to communities both in the United States and Canada. In 1946, 21,100,000 tourists visited Canada and they brought $221,000,000 into this country. This was the largest number of holiday visitors to come here since the late 1920's. In 1928, the year in which the pre-war record for tourists was set, money brought into the country in this way amounted to $184,000,000. The poorest year for tourist trade in Canada was 1942, when the revenue was estimated at $82,000,000, only about one-third of the figure for 1946. It is reasonable to expect that an all-time record for tourist traffic may be made this year since facilities for transportation have improved considerably in the past year.

Highways Have Been Improved

In view of the amount of revenue which tourist traffic brings to a country, the term "tourist industry" has come into use, and the many services required by the thousands of holiday visitors do indeed reach the proportions of a large and profitable industry. With its many lakes, rivers, forests, and attractive national parks, Canada is an inviting land to the thousands of vacationists who come here each year. Now that their numbers are steadily increasing, it would seem wise if every effort were made to improve facilities for tourists and to build up this very profitable industry. Constant improvements have been made in highways in Canada in the last twenty years, and in some parts of the country highway facilities compare favourably with those to be found anywhere.

Natural Beauty Of The Prairies

Figures published recently by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics showed that $12,400,000, or about 5.8 per cent. of the total $221,000,000 spent by visitors to Canada last year, were spent in the Prairie Provinces. Naturally those parts of Canada, with the greater wealth of large lakes, forests and rivers, attracted great numbers of vacationists, but the beauty spots of the West and especially the very fine national parks which have been developed on the Prairies will, as time goes on, bring larger numbers of tourists to this part of the country. With them will come increasing revenue to merchants and others in businesses patronized by holiday visitors. Good roads, and fine facilities for accommodation and recreation will prove valuable assets both to visitors from other parts of Canada and to the many who come here from the United States. The tourist industry is one which still has great potentialities for enterprising Canadians, and there is no reason why the Prairie Provinces should not benefit extensively from it.

Ice Cream War Gives Everybody Stomach Ache

RICEVILLE, Ia. — An ice cream price war ended here when everyone ran out of ice cream after the battle had reached a point where one dealer was giving it away by the pint and another paid customers a penny to take a pint home.

The war started when ice cream maker Walter McCoy offered a three-day special of 20 cents a pint to introduce a new product.

A rival firm told its retailers to keep their prices lower "no matter what."

McCoy rose to the challenge and soon ice cream dropped to 15 cents a pint, then to five, and finally reached a climax when Mrs. Martha Timmerman posted this placard:

"One cent paid to those asking for a pint of ice cream and taking it out of the store."

Most residents of this town of 950 went to bed with a stomach ache.

One-Fifth Of Rural People Live On Prairies

One-fifth of the rural people in Canada are in the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. The story of their rapid settlement, particularly in the first decade of the present century, when the population increased over 400 per cent., is a story of novelty, excitement, enterprise, and endurance. Now, writes Florence M. Edwards in "Farm Family Living in the Prairie Provinces", the story is merging into a more sober tale: one of struggle for stability, for security on the farm, for a reasonable standard of living.

In order to obtain first-hand information on such questions as what have the rural families achieved in their short history of settlement; what kind of living is provided by farms in various kinds of farming regions; is housing adequate; what of community facilities; how much do prairie families spend for a living; how do they spend it, and so on, more than 620 prairie housewives were interviewed and farm homes in three contrasting farm regions, in Central Alberta, and in Central and Northern Saskatchewan, were visited during 1942 and 1943.

Miss Edwards, who was formerly Agricultural Economist with the Dominion Department of Agriculture, has collated and co-ordinated the information given in the Dominion Department of Agriculture Publication, No. 787, "Farm Family Living in the Prairie Provinces", a copy of which may be obtained on request from the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Has Had "Temporary" Jobs All Life

PITTSBURGH. — The Rev. W. W. Ritter has devoted his life to "temporary" jobs.

Once he was asked to fill in as pastor of the Mt. Nebo United Presbyterian Church for six months, until a regular pastor could be assigned. That was 37 years ago. He's still got the job.

During the teacher shortage in World War I, Ritter was asked to substitute in the one-room Mt. Nebo school until the school board could get another schoolmaster. They never did.

Pat—"I could not. 'Tis me wife's child by her first husband!"

Nurse Wanted For Eskimos In Northland —MAY BE QUEEN

OTTAWA. — If you're a graduate nurse, the federal government has a rather unusual job open.

The government will pay your full maintenance, leaving the salary completely clear.

You will have an almost certain guarantee of at least three proposals. You will be queen of the community, reigning in a specially designed palace now under construction in Winnipeg. You'll get a long sea voyage.

Interested? The job is that of nurse of the department of national health and welfare at Port Harrison, halfway up the coast of Hudson Bay. The pay isn't so hot, $1,644 a year, or $1,704 if you've had public health training, but it is all clear.

There are about 500 Eskimos in the territory, and it will be your job to cure for them. There is a government radio station with some unmarried men, eager for feminine companionship, in Hudson's Bay post, with more males, and another trading post, again with men. You don't have to be a ravishing beauty to be sure of masculine attention, devotion and almost certain proposals.

The government has a specially-designed prefabricated building which will be shipped there, along with the successful candidate for the job, on the Nascopie.

Applications should be sent Dr. P. E. Moore, National Health Department, Ottawa.—Toronto Daily Star.

Canada Warned To Cut Production Costs

LONDON. — Unless Canada can hold down her production costs she may "price herself" out of her essential foreign markets at a time when her expenditures in United States dollars is causing concern, R. Keith Jopson, United Kingdom trade commissioner in Montreal, said in a Board of Trade Journal.

Jopson wrote that world economic dislocations are pressing Canada heavily and that production costs are perturbing her manufacturers.

He warned Britain that Canada's "patient understanding" of Britain's export difficulties had limits. It was likely orders might begin to be cancelled unless prices were reduced and deliveries improved.

The Winnipeg Free Press says the great majority of automobile accidents are not caused by lack of skill, physical incapacity or handicaps of drivers, nor by failure of the car mechanism—the greatest percentage are due to ill-temper, gross bad manners, or bad judgment.

Vacation Trend Points To West

The vacation trend this year is definitely to the western United States and Canada, with the majority of travelers going by private motor. Tours by train are already well booked, and charter-plane trips are increasing. Travel officials say that it is too early to estimate the numbers that will go by the various carriers, but all units are being pressed into service for what all signs indicate will be the biggest domestic travel season to date. Rail lines say there is already evidence of a 15 per cent. increase over last year. — By Diana Rice in N.Y. Times.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

YOU NEVER KNOW

By HOWARD BECKLER

MIKE DEVLIN touched the air brakes and pulled the big truck to a grinding stop. That lousy light had changed to red without any warning. The rain was slanting in the open window since he'd made that last curve, and he started to close it up. That's how he happened to see this guy standing outside of the stop light using his thumb for a light he was worth.

Mike glanced at the clock on the dash board, one a.m. First chance he had of grabbing a ride.

The light showed yellow for a long second and snapped to green. Mike was watching the rain drip off the battered hat of the hitch-hiker as he gunned the motor. Then he saw the crutches for the first time. The poor thing was on crutches, leaning on them heavily. The coat he wore didn't look like much either. Mike cursed the big NO RIDERS sign that hung in the windshield, hesitated and swung open the heavy door.

"C'mon, buddy, climb aboard." The poor guy had a bad time of it, getting up into the high cab with his crutches. Mike finally had to drag him in with both hands, and when he felt the chilling dampness of the fellow's clothes and the thinness of his shoulders, he was glad he'd stopped. They were rolling now. The hitch-hiker just said, "Thanks", and sat soaking up the heat the big motor was throwing. They rode in silence for a while.

"How far you travlin'?" Mike asked.

"Far as I can get," the other was studying the sign in the windshield. "Ain't this against the rules, fella, picking me up?"

"Rules were made to be broken," Mike grinned. He'd heard that somewhere. It sounded pretty good. He guessed maybe the boss wouldn't have thought so.

The other man laughed, but there were no bells in the laugh. It was sharp and cackling, and for some strange reason made Mike think of icebergs.

Mike watched him roll down the window on his side of the cab. He did it very slowly and deliberately. Then he picked up the crutches and threw them out of the fast moving truck. After that he laughed again and closed the window.

Mike's foot lightened on the gas unconsciously, and the truck slowed perceptibly. He growled nervous-like, "What's the big idea?" He felt suddenly disillusioned, like the first time he found out there was no Santa Claus.

"The idea," the guy's tone was nasty now, "is to keep this buggy moving fast!" He did some slight of hand tricks in his right hand coat pocket. Mike noticed that his shoulders didn't look so thin when he had that cannon in his hand. Especially since it was pointed at Mike's head.

Mike stepped on the gas. "Rules were made to be broken," he mimicked Mike. "I'll bet that's the only thing we agree on." He was running over at the mouth with importance. "The old guy, back at the filling station, didn't need his crutches anymore. He's got a hole in his head. I get myself a ride from a nice soft head, so what good are the crutches, pal?"

Mike Devlin wasn't worrying about the crutches. There were plenty of other things... the boss and his NO RIDERS rule for instance. The boss was nuts on his rules, but hell, there were other jobs in the world if he ever got out of this mess in one piece. How about Madge and the twins? What good would he be to them with a hole in his head. This bozo was kill crazy.

"You keep your flat foot on that gas hard and consistent," the gunman snapped "or they'll be having a double funeral in the country."

"They fry 'em in a hurry in this state," Mike felt the sharp pressure of the gun against his temple and wished he'd kept his mouth shut. They were hitting sixty-five when he started slowing for the S curve near Galesburg, and the pressure was still notching his forehead.

"I drive, you know," the hot breath touched Mike's cheek. "Just in case you're getting tired."

Mike knew that when he stopped driving he stopped living. "Bad curve coming up," he nursed the speeding truck around the first bend.

The blockade was ideal as to location. The copper's blockade, that is. They both saw it at the same time. It leaped toward them as they straightened out of the second curve in the S... red lamps were swinging them down from the middle of the road... just a routine check, probably stopping all the traffic.

Right through the middle! This guy barked in Mike's ear.

Mike knew this was it. He knew the road. A deep ditch on the left, a high brick wall on the right, and coppers down the middle. He could run the middle all right, but they'd find him with a hole in his head later on. The pressure eased off his head. The guy was concentrating on cops now. It was sort of funny. The look on that one cop's face when they didn't slow down. Then Mike did three things at the same time. He heeled the big truck over hard to the right, sid his door open, and jumped. He heard the crash as the truck hit the wall. He didn't hear anything after that.

Mike was watching the twins play catch in the warm sun of the front yard when the mailman arrived. Mike accepted an envelope and the morning paper with his left hand. The right arm was still in a sling, but Mike wasn't kicking! A broken arm and a cunk on the noodle were pretty cheap. Yes sir, pretty cheap! At least he still had his whole hide. Now, the other guy...

Mike opened the envelope which was the stationery of Huber's Midwest Trucking Company. He found a cheque for two weeks pay and a short terse note from the boss: "You know the rules Mike. Sorry. I hear they're hiring drivers at Wardlaw's."

Great guy, the boss. Kicked you in the chin one minute and helped you to your feet the next.

Now, the other guy not so hot. Funny how that brick wall had pushed the engine back in the killer's lap. Made hash out of both his feet. They said he'd never walk again. Not that it makes much difference.

Here! Here's the whole story in the morning paper. One time in his life Mike Devlin makes the headlines and the front page. And look at this, "KILLER OF CRIPPLE WILL SPEND LIFE SENTENCE ON CRUTCHES." Mike scratched his head quizzically. You never know.

Indiana Man Has Really New Idea

If there is any truth in that old saying about better mousetraps, the world should presently be beating a path to the door of H. L. Ratcliff of Muncie, Ind., to get his electric one. It is a kind of miniature stall, with metallic contact plates on its floor and sides, a bait-holder at the end, and a cable to plug into the house circuit. When the mouse seeks the bait he comes in contact with the plates and is electrocuted. The last convulsive jerk of his muscles throws him out of the trap, leaving it ready for the next mouse. Patent 2420723 has been granted on this invention.—Brandon Sun.

Human muscles can absorb as much as 30 quarts of liquid.

Market Garden Industry Thrives In The West

WINNIPEG. — The prairie provinces have a comparatively new big-time industry—market gardening. Headed for the ranks of major western businesses, it is expected to do a $10,000,000 business in 1947—with bigger and better things promised for the future.

In Manitoba the market garden business is largely centred around Winnipeg. More than one-third of there with some 600 market garden farms clustered in the surrounding area. The remaining 400 are scattered throughout the rural districts.

Some expansion is expected due to the opening of two new canning plants this year—one in Winnipeg and another at Winkler.

Moose Jaw, Regina and Saskatoon are the hub of Saskatchewan's market garden business. Agriculture officials say that approximately 550 farmers will do a business estimated at more than $2,000,000 this year on about 1,000 acres.

In Alberta the picture is much the same with the industry concentrated in the irrigated areas on the south around Lethbridge, Taber and Brooks.

Market gardening in the foothills province has soared from a $150,000 venture by a scattered few in 1937 to a $1,500,000 industry today.

The general western picture, however, shows that the industry still has much room for expansion as the present output barely supplies the prairie. Alberta exports a small amount to Winnipeg and a trickle finds its way as far east as Toronto. Saskatchewan exports nothing and has to import from Manitoba to help its own requirements.

The Manitoba export-import balance shows closer to the black. During 1946 exports jumped considerably and somewhat offset heavy California fruit imports. The most encouraging sign was the shipping of several carloads of turnips to Vancouver last winter.

Chief export markets for Manitoba are western Ontario and eastern Saskatchewan—both of which are closer to Winnipeg than to the base markets of their own provinces.

Generally the chief prairie crops are root crops—potatoes, carrots, beets and turnips, with potatoes being the principal one—accounting for approximately one-third of Manitoba market gardeners' $5,898,000 business last year and half of the $2,708,000 turnover in 1936.

Other prairie crops include peas, beans, corn, tomatoes, cabbage, lettuce, cauliflower and celery.

Girl's Grit Saves Baby Brother

FESTUS, Mo. — Eleven-year-old Daisy Sue Flinn modestly accepted the role of a heroine as the story got around how she saved her 3-year-old brother, Larry, from drowning in an open cistern by holding his head above the water for two hours until help arrived.

Daisy Sue related that she was drawing a bucket of water when her brother fell into the cistern and, realizing he would drown in the six feet of water before she could get help, she leaped in after him.

She held the boy's head out of the water with her left hand and wrapped a chain hanging in the well around her right hand.

"I cried for help at first before I realized I had to save my strength," she said. Two hours later Judy Moore, a 6-year-old neighbor, heard sobs from the cistern, looked down and received Daisy Sue's instruction to go for help.

After Fred Reece and Herman Cody, telephone repairmen, drew the pair out, Daisy Sue said:

New Automobile Engine Tested

FRENCH LICK, Ind.—An automobile engine which uses 30 to 40 per cent. less gasoline because of a higher compression ratio was demonstrated to automotive engineers here.

Charles F. Kettering, who retired recently as vice president of General Motors Corporation, said the development of the new engine marked the beginning of a "new era in economical use for fuel."

Kettering said motors of higher compression ratio were "possible and practicable", despite a mass of technical literature to the contrary.

The engine demonstrated in an Oldsmobile here was developed in GM's research laboratories division, which Kettering headed until his retirement. Hundreds of engineers attending the second post-war summer meeting of the society of Automotive Engineers rode in the car.

Kettering said that test cars powered by the new engine have been running in Detroit and Dayton areas. He said they had proved that fuel economies from 33½ to 40 per cent. would be accomplished by the "new, smooth engine of 12½ to one compression ratio."

"So much has been written and said about our having reached the peak in fuel economies," said Kettering, "that most engineers have believed this bugaboo."

"If engineers, and our colleagues, the petroleum technologists, will continue to work together on our separate developments, we will find we can do a better job for customers."

MY WEEK

by R. J. Doachman

We have had a visit from President Truman. He is a very lucky man. The weather in Ottawa has been abnormally miserable this spring yet when Mr. Truman came and stayed it turned out three beautiful days. He ought to stay with us here. We have indeed very happy conditions on the North America continent. The President of the U.S.A. visited Mexico not very long ago and got a magnificent reception. Ottawa gave him a grand welcome for some reason or other this is a very demonstrative city, we are used to celebrities, or to men who think they are. We greet them with appreciation, not with general applause.

Mr. King struck a happy note when he pointed out that he had some experience of the difficulties which confront Mr. Truman. The President of the United States does not control the majority of the votes in the Senate and the House of Representatives. In Canada Parliament is in control. When a Prime Minister ceases to control Parliament he becomes leader of the opposition—someone else takes his place.

I read a statement the other day that business in this country would like to get rid of labor unions. This is a very preposterous suggestion. Labor Unions have a very important function to fulfill. Life would be more difficult without them. Merely because at times they abuse their privileges is no reason why they should be wiped out. What the average thoughtful man in the Dominion of Canada wants labor to do is to act strictly in its own interest. Wages come primarily from production. If they come out of capital industry would soon cease to exist. Normally labor has far more to gain from decline in the cost of living than it has from increases in wages. Wage rates in Canada did not increase materially between 1926 and 1939. The average money wage in 1939 was only $2. higher than in 1926 but in terms of real purchasing power it was higher by the neat sum of $219. Failure to realize such facts is one of the weaknesses of organized labor today.

Housing in Russia is a relatively simple problem. The Russian Government aims at providing each family with a floor space of 400 square feet. If emergency arises you are supposed to take in one of the neighbors and take care of him until he can get another house. Four hundred square feet isn't a very large area. It might do for a two car garage. A family of two might live in it but Russians have large families. Try housing six or eight people in an area of four-hundred square feet. Let me know how you get along.

In the United States the high cost of building hampers further progress but these difficulties produce their own solution. Under the circumstances demand falls off, people find a way of living in more limited accommodation, in the end prices drop and we start all over again to build new homes—that too will come in Canada.

The changes in the distribution of world trade are astonishing. In pre-war days the United States exported a million tons of coal. In 1947 it is expected to show an export of thirty-six million. British coal exports have declined. Britain is now practically out of the export coal market.

HEAD C.P.R. BROTHERHOOD: Executive of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the next three years is shown above following their election at a meeting at the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec. The next general meeting of the organization will be held at Vancouver in August, 1948. Left to right, sitting: A. C. Mykle, Winnipeg, assistant general chairman for western lines; W. Donnelly, Ottawa, secretary-treasurer; J. J. O'Grady, Ottawa, vice-president; S. Burns, Toronto, general chairman; and W. K. McKee, Winnipeg, vice general chairman. Standing: J. Inglis, Medicine Hat, assistant general chairman for western lines; G. Cochran, London, assistant general chairman for eastern lines; R. Gauthier, St. Therese, Que., assistant general chairman for eastern lines.

The answer to "Work or Want" is: This is no time for small men in big jobs. We need great men in all jobs—even little ones.

Only free men give full production.

Well illustrated in attractive two colors, 10,000 copies of these booklets are in course of distribution and it is anticipated that the heavy demand will call for a second issue of at least the original number.

The booklets are well illustrated with scenes along the highway from Dawson Creek to Whitehorse including bridges and other structural attractions.

They contain road maps and a wealth of information as to highway regulations, accommodations and services. Travel offices report that already there is a heavy demand for the booklets which are distributed free.

The booklets are available at A. M. A. and Chamber of Commerce offices.

Thousands of copies will be sent to travel agencies in the U. S. where there is a heavy volume of applications for information concerning the Alaska highway and facilities for tourist travel.

Arrangements have been completed for the first large-scale tuberculosis X-ray survey of the Indians in the Yukon territory.

The late President Roosevelt left a gross estate of $1,943,885.86 at his death April 12, 1945, the first executors' accounting revealed.

A new Swedish stamp was issued in April. It commemorates Erik Gustaf Geijer, historian, poet and composer who died 100 years ago.

During 1947 Britain is aiming at a target of 140 per cent. of her pre-war exports, Sir Alexander Chittibuck, British high commissioner to Canada, said.

A new vaccine capable of preventing influenza epidemics has been announced by Dr. Wendell M. Stanley of the Rockefeller institute for medical research at Princeton, N.J.

Health LEAGUE of CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

EATING PLEASURE

Psychological gratifications derived from pleasurable meals are as important to health as are the very vitamins and minerals essential to our diet. This, say the experts, means that eating should not be allowed to become a "chore, an ordeal nor a race against time."

The authorities on the value of food also stress the importance of clean surroundings where meals are being served. Cleanliness is desirable for its pleasing effect as well as from the point of view of sound hygiene.

MUSCLE MEATS

While not suggesting that Canadians abstain altogether from those juicy steaks and chops which many favour, health authorities issue a reminder on the value of other meats. Such items as liver, kidneys, tongue and heart, are quite as nourishing as the "muscle meats", they say.

The "muscle meats" — such as chops and steaks, are definitely second choice among peoples of many lands, and, in these days of high prices, Canadian housewives have the assurance of experts that the cheaper, if less popular, meats, are to be preferred.

BATH NIGHT

In a day and age when heating water was a chore, the traditional bath only on a Saturday night wasn't as bad as it sounds nowadays, admit the health authorities. But, they point out, there's no excuse for a more weekly bath in the modern age when hot water is usually available at a twist of the wrist.

Frequent bathing, say the doctors, does more than ensure cleanliness. It helps tone up the system. As weather is warmer, Canadians are advised to make bathing a daily "must" when circumstances permit.

BACHELOR HEALTH

Those who strive to "live alone and like it" are reminded by the National health authorities that, even more than family folk, they must watch their living schedules, if they would preserve their health.

It is such a temptation for the bachelor or bachelor-girl to make do with a snack, and, the doctors fear, many living alone are inclined to be careless with cleaning up their living quarters. Strict self-discipline is advised, not only with respect to cleanliness of rooms and apartments, but with meal schedules and other aspects of living.
